BELLE OF BALL TO BEGIN POSING SOON

Beatrice Roberts Will Join Newton Studio Forces.

Beatrice Roberts, the pretty Winthrop girl who won the beauty crown at the annual ball yesterday night, will begin work for the Allen Film Company at the Newton studio about the first of the year. It was announced yesterday. She has already appeared as an "extra" in films in New York. Her home is at 157 Grove avenue, Winthrop.

The latest Boston candidate for coronation honors is tall for her 16 years. She is a beautiful brunette.

The judges of the beauty contest awarded honorable mention to Miss Elizabeth White, 16, of 51 Jefferson avenue, Everett; Alice Nash, 18, of 15 Woburn street, Everett; Roxbury; Anna L. Barnes, 20, of 205 Chelsea street, East Boston; and Mrs. H. Martel of 30 Broadway street. These girls will all probably be given positions by producers.

WINTHROP GIRL MEANS TO WIN SUCCESS IN MOVIES

"I Am Going to Love It," Says
Beatrice Roberts, 16, Winner
of Beauty Prize at Ball.

There may be a happier girl somewhere in Greater Boston than Miss Beatrice Roberts of Winthrop, but it isn't likely. Miss Roberts is the young lady who was selected from among 150 beauties at the "movie" ball at the Arona Wednesday night to become star of the Atlas Film Company.

Miss Roberts will be 16 next month. Her father is C. L. Roberts, a salesman for a Boston commission house.

"I'm going to love it; I know I am," said the future movie star. "I know it's going to be awfully hard work—everybody is telling me that—but I can stand it; I am strong and healthy. And I'll learn to learn." And Miss Roberts bent a bright smile at "mama," who was sitting near, watching her daughter as she talked. The mother nodded her head and said simply: "She's a smart girl."

Miss Roberts is in her second year at the Winthrop high school. She always has been a favorite among the girls of the school—and one of the most active. Swimming has always fascinated her. She loves the water and has taken her swim almost daily through the summers since she was a little girl. She likes tennis, too, and music.

Last summer Miss Roberts figured in a movie, "The Heart of the Hero," taken at Winthrop, in which amateurs figured. Her role was a minor one; she took advantage of the opportunity to get some experience. Also this summer she made an effort to break into the movies by visiting some New York studios, in company with her mother. Her failure to get a chance discouraged her not at all. She kept her eyes open, however, and picked up a lot of vaudeville knowledge at the studios she visited.

Beatrice is the youngest of the six daughters of Mr. Roberts.

NEW QUEEN OF

BEAUTY CROWNED

Miss Ruth Malcolmon of Philadelphia is "Miss America"

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 6. —(INS)—A new queen ascended the throne of beauty tonight when Ruth Malcolmon, 18, of West Philadelphia, was crowned "Miss America," for 1924.

A huge crowd jammed the doors of the Million Dollar Pier auditorium to acclaim the decision of the judges, which was reached after hours of debate.

The new American bathing beauty was entered as "Miss Philadelphia" against 82 other contestants, representing every section of the country.

Miss Malcolmon has long golden brown curls and hazel eyes, is 5 feet 6 inches in height and weighs 132 pounds. Her other measurements are: Neck 12 1-2; bust, 24; waist, 20; hips, 34; wrist, 6; thigh, 20; calf, 13 1-2; ankle 7 1-2.

Howard Chandler Christy, famous artist and one of the judges, described Miss Malcolmon as "a truly feminine beauty."

Early in the evening the judges eliminated all but six entries. This group in addition to Miss Malcolmon consisted of "Miss America of 1923" Katherine Campbell, of Columbus, Ohio; Miss Santa Cruz (Fay E. Lampier); Miss Manhattan (Dentrice Roberts); Miss Los Angeles (Lillian Knight); and Miss Chicago (Margaret Leigh). Miss America was awarded second prize, Miss Santa Cruz, third, and Miss Manhattan, Miss Joe Angeles and Miss Chicago were tied for fourth prize.

So overcome was Miss Malcolmon by the honor that her eyes were hurtled with tears as the applauding thousands on the Million Dollar Pier gave noisy evidence of the popularity of the judges' choice.

"It is so wonderful, I can say nothing," she said.

Miss Columboe, who would have been awarded the $5,000 trophy of "Golden Mermaid" if she had won, said she felt "convinced" that she had lost.

Star Chamber Judgement Of 83 Beauties in Bathing Suits Takes Place Today

By DAVID ZENTNER

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 5 (I.N.S.).—This is judgment day for the 83 inter-city beauties entered here in the contest for the crown of America's most beautiful bathing girl.

Up to date, the beauties have been reviewed in morning clothes, afternoon attire and evening dress, but today they appear for the first time in their bathing suits—publicly and privately.

The private appearance will be before an exclusive group in "the little red school house," where judges will choose 15 girls, three from each of the five geographical divisions. From these 15 the final winners will be selected tomorrow in another private session.

In addition to the 14 official judges at the private ceremony there will be the chaperones and escortors of the beauties present together with newspapermen.

The reason for a private judgment as given by pageant officials is that last year when the beauties were selected in public there was a near riot with women fainting and men turning pale. This version is contradicted by an Atlantic City official who declares the opposition from organizations throughout the country against "glorifying the American bathing suit" has produced the star chamber proceedings.

Great Parade

The public appearance of the bathing girls will occur this afternoon in a spectacular parade along the board walk. Lest the public be shocked, special suits have been provided for the contest.

For the private judging special bathing suits have also been provided—black, one-piece affairs.

This arrangement is believed by pageant officials to prevent individual suits from blinding the judgment of artistic scorers.

Advance efforts to learn the dimension of these suits were unavailing. It was learned they are made of clinging silken material and have never been near the water. It was reported a square yard of material would cover the situation.

Miss Oklahoma. While May Stockton, a demure 18-year-old blonde, declares she does not like to be judged in public. "It's the judges who choose and not the public," she said.

Miss Milwaukee (Chara Ethel Keeler) on the other hand, says: "Why shouldn't we be judged in public. A girl in a bathing suit is no worse than a chorus girl on the stage. I do not care where I am judged."

Crowds kept pouring into the city for the pageant. There appeared to be a majority of the masculine sex among the incoming throngs.

After three hours of estimating last night among the judges, the contest for the most beautiful girl in evening dress was won by Miss Manhattan (Beatrice Roberts), 18, a hobbled haired brunette. She wore a light-fitting, white brocaded silver gown with silver slippers and stockings and carried a large white ostrich fan edged in black. Miss Santa Cruz (Trange Lamphier), 18, with blonde hair, won second prize, wearing a corse gown beaded, with silver slippers and white stockings. Third award went to Miss Johnstown (Leona Van Al), 18, who has long brown curls. She wore a white gown with rhinestones and a silver rhinestone bandeau silver slippers and white stockings.

Miss Ruth Malcolmson, entered in Atlantic City's beauty pageant as "Miss Philadelphia" was adjudged winner of the intercity division of the rolling chair parade held on the board walk. "Miss Chicago" was second and "Miss West Palm Beach" third.

Atlantic City Bathing Beauty Contest Nar- rowed to Fifteen

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 6. The difficulties that were Paris' when it came to awarding the golden apple beset the judges in the national beauty contest here today and they decided unanimously to take the leading beauties back to the schoolhouse for another private view of disputed charms before narrowing the field to 15 for the public and final judging tonight.

Twenty-five beauties, including the leaders, Beatrice Roberts, New York, Ruth Malcomson, Philadelphia; Estelle Bradley, Atlanta; Margaret Leigh, Chicago, and Lilian Knight, Los Angeles, were inspected again and the 15 fairest will be lined up against Mary Katherine Campbell, twice winner of the title "Miss America."

Miss Knight has long red hair, the first time since the annual pageant began that a divisional winner has been thus favored. The majority of honors at this year's contest have gone to girls with long hair, despite the fact that bobbed haired contestants outnumbered those with unshorn tresses by four to one.

"Miss Manhattan" and "Miss Atlanta" have bobbed hair, while the other leaders wear theirs long.

This is a Studebaker year. 2-2311

DIVORCE DECREE IS AWARDED WARMAN

Say Girl's Hasty Marriage;
Without Knowledge of Housekeeping Led to Desertion

Upon recommendation of Special Master W. Holt Apgar, Chancellor Walker has signed a preliminary decree of divorce in favor of Lambert T. Warman, of 186 Culbertson Avenue, from Mrs. Edna Donegan Warman, on the ground of desertion.

Although the report of Special Master Apgar deals strictly with the legal aspect of the desertion, all the elements of a domestic tragedy are revealed by his study of the facts in the case. A hasty marriage by a very young girl with little experience in housekeeping was set down by Mr. Apgar as being responsible for the alleged desertion.

She was accustomed to work other than in the house, he said, and she evidently found housekeeping and its attendant duties (kitchen, washing and to get rid of her husband, he added, she suddenly quit him and fled, leaving no forwarding address.

The romance of the Warmans was of short duration. It ran its full course in six months. The husband met her, he said, when she was 17 years old, and after an acquaintance of but three months, they were married at Elkhon, Md., in July, 1922. Three months later, in October, she left him, he alleged.

Maxwell A. Kraemer was counsel for Warman in the divorce action, which was not contested.

Miss Pittsburg Enters Race When
Dorothy Knapp Withdraws
With Kathryn Ray.

By Chicago Tribune Licensed Wire.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 10.

Although two of the bright stars in the New York delegation withdrew from the race for the crown of Miss America today to preserve a semblance of harmony in the national beauty tournament, two of the three remaining New York beauties in the late captured places in the New York and New England states division antling their to appear in the semi-final tomorrow. They are Miss Greater New York (Beatrice Roberts) and Miss Bronx (Edith Higgins). In the morning these two young women will appear, together with the winners in the four other geographical divisions, when the final selections will be made.

Miss Manhattan (Dorothy Knapp) and Miss Coney Island (Kathryn Ray) announced this morning that rather than subject the manager of the pageant to further embarrassment they would withdraw. Their decision relieved a situation which threatened to wreck the entire affair. It was brought to a climax when Miss Pittsburg (Mildred Walker) and Miss Erie (Mary Ann Guth) announced that they would not compete for the title against such professional beauties as Miss Knapp and Miss Ray.

Miss Erie, Miss Avery, and Miss Coney Island, of the two New York entrants, the atmosphere was cleared, and Miss Pittsburg again entered the lists. Miss Erie, however, was later eliminated when she failed to appear before the judges to undergo the first test in which resulted in the elimination of all but 15 of the beauties.

Those still in the race are: New York and New England states: Miss Greller, New York (Beatrice Roberts); Miss Bronx (Edith Higgins); Miss Syracuse (Bern Jackson).

Middle Atlantic states: Miss Newark (Helen Corcoran), Miss Pittsburg (Mildred Walker), Miss Jersey City (Frances M. Glowacki).

Southern states: Miss Miami (Hath Southern states: Miss Miami (Hath

One-Piece Suits Displayed.

The afternoon was devoted to the bathers' review. This was strictly an undress affair. Not only did the visiting beauties make their first appearance in the all-revealing one-piece suits but scores of pretty girls likewise took part, similarly clad. In addition there was a division devoted to professional beauties and although chorus girls from several of the New York musical comedies were in line, Miss Knapp and Miss Ray, the professional beauties strenuously objected to by the amateurs, were conspicuous by their absence.

Tomorrow morning the finals of the beauty contest will be held, to be followed in the afternoon by the annual rolling-chair parade in which more than 200 chairs and floats have been entered. The day will be concluded with the crowning of Miss America of 1925.

PICK 15 BEAUTIES W/ FOR FINAL ROUND

Judges Choose Three in Each Section—Miss New York Leads East

PROFESSIONALS OUT; OBJECTORS RETURN

Special Dispatch to The Herald
ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 10
—Miss Beatrice Roberts of New York city was today judged the winner of the New York and New England section of the bathing girls
review in the annual beauty tournament of the Atlantic City pageant.
Miss Roberts appeared as Miss New York.

Miss Edith Higgins of New York who appeared as Miss Bronx, and Miss Fern Jackson of Syracuse, N. Y., who appeared as Miss Syracuse, won second
and third places, respectively.

FINAL DECISION TODAY

Including the New York and New England section, the inter-city beauties were divided into five geographical divisions. The 15 winners, three in each division, will appear before the judges
again tomorrow morning and two of each will be selected as final contenders for the "Miss America" title.
The judges will then vote on these
two, who will appear side by side tomorrow afternoon. The golden ballot will be placed in a large golden apple
which will be opened on the million
dollar pier tomorrow evening.

The three winners in each of the other four divisions of bathing girls today were as follows: Middle Atlantic
section, Miss Newark, Helen Concorant;
second, Miss Pittsburgh, Mildred Walter; third, Miss Jersey City, Frances M.
Giovannelli.
Southern section, first, Miss Miami,
Ruth Woodard; second, Miss Biloxi,
Katherine Lawrence McFarland; third,
Miss Jacksonville, Madeline O'Loughlin.
Mid-western section—First, Miss Detroit, Jane Portier; second, Miss Cleveland, Elaine Connor; third, Miss Minneapolis, Lucille McDermott.
Western section—First, Miss California, Fay Langhorne; second, Miss Oregon, Gladys Jackson; third, Miss Omaha, Ardenna Dore.

PROFESSIONALS STAY OUT

The threatened disruption of the pas-
sant caused by entry of Miss Dorothy Knapp and Miss Katherine Ray, both of New York city, and professional stage
beauties, who came here as Miss Manhattan, and Miss Coney Island, respectively, was averted today when both withdrew.

Because of their presence as competitors, Miss Pittsburgh, Miss Mildred
Walter, and Miss Erie, Miss Mary Ann
Guth, withdrew, and it was expected
that a dozen or more of the other intercity beauties would do so today. However, on the announced resignation of Miss Knapp and Miss Ray, the two Pennsylvania girls again entered and harmony prevailed.

Both of the New York beauties, in their letters of resignation, expressed regret, but declared their willingness to step aside to further the success of the pageant. Before their action was taken, the pageant committee wrestled
with the problem as to whether they should be barred or not, until an official statement was made that they had withdrawn.
In a formal statement, the pageant director, among other things declared
that they would conduct the beauty contest even though there were only two competitors.

SEMI-PUBLIC APPEARANCE

This morning, the inter-city beauties,
in one-piece bathing suits, paraded up
and down the stage in the auditorium of the new high school here at a semi-
public appearance attended by the
judges, pageant officials and newspapermen.
The afternoon between thickly packed
lines of spectators extending for miles
along the boardwalk and crowding hotel windows, porches, house-tops, and
piers, the beauties, riding on individual
floats, also appeared in bathing suits.
Tonight they were judged in evening
dress at the Garden pier theatre. They were grouped in the same geographical sections as in the morning.

Golden Blonde Wins Premier American Beauty Honors

Miss California (Fay Lamprier) Captures Atlantic City Championship with Her 5½-Foot Distribution of 138 Pounds; Miss Los Angeles Second

Atlantic City, Sept. 12.—From Sun-
the California benches came the 1926
"Miss America," Fay Lamprier, golden
blonde from Oakland, winning the annual beauty tournament.

And so that the state in which Pro-
f. Made Bennett led the culture and training of bathing beauties might
have its cup filled to overflowing,
Adrienne Dore, otherwise Miss Los Angeles, received second honors.

Fay is tall and 19; Adrienne short and 17. Other statistical information
regarding the winner and runner-up,
tending to prove that the judges who scanned the 66 fair entrants clad in one-piece bathing suits, were not
searching for a typo, follows:—

Height	Blonde	Brown
Eyes	Hazel	Gray
Weight	138	116
Bust	34	33
Waist	26½	25½
Arm	22	21½
Thigh	21½	17½
Calf	12½	13½
Ankle	8	8¼
Height	5ft 4in	5ft 4½in

Every girl in the contest received a gold or silver cup for some particular
item of pre-eminence in which she excelled the others, and all of them were almost as radiant as "Miss California"
herself. Thousands thronged "The Million Dollar Play" to see the prizes
awarded last night.

Miss Lamprier, who last year was
an entrant from Yuba City, announced to those who surrounded her

that she was a nice little home body
of a girl, spending most of the time
in a kitchen when she wasn't being an amateur beauty.

Miss "Yenta's Beauty Cheer"
Mary Katherine Campbell of Columbus, O., "Miss America" in 1922
and 1923, was given an ovation today
at the distribution of prizes won during the 1926 pageant on the million-dollar play.

Miss Campbell was given the original Golden Marmalade trophy, reported to be worth $5000. Miss Lamprier
received a replica of the trophy,
worth $2000.

Trophies similar to the one given
Miss Lamprier are to be awarded to Miss Margaret Gorman of Washington, D. C., winner in 1921, and Miss Ruth Macdonald of Philadelphia, last year's second, who did not compete
this year because she alleged "com-
moral" beauties were entered. Nelson of the girls was in the city, and
the trophies will be sent to them.

Proposed Rival Beauty Contest
New York, Sept. 12.—Another nation-wide beauty contest to rival the Atlantic City tournament is proposed for Palm Beach, Fla., every winter by Florenz Ziegfeld, noted "Follies" producer.

A pageant along the same lines as
that held in the New Jersey resort is in prospect, except that to do away
with claims of "professionalism," two beauty tournaments will be held—one
for those who have marketed their charms on stage and screen and another for "Simou-pure amateurs."

Thursday, March 22 and 23.—Miss Ward and her over-Wilson and Brown—unable to start—tomorrow last chance—no fuel and only one or two meals of food left—must be near the end. Have decided it shall be natural police or without our effects, and die in our tracks.

Friday, March 29.—Since the twenty-first we have had a continuous Gale. We had fuel to make two cups of tea and had food for two days on the twentieth. Every day we have been ready to start for our depot eleven miles away, but out-the command, must have been the first to die. He had tossed back the flaps of his sleeping bag and had opened his coat. Under his shoulders, as though placed there for protection, was a little wallet containing the three scribbled notebooks which told the pleasurable story, and from which the foregoing extracts were taken. One of his arms was flung across Wilson's body. It was as if with his last conscious thought he had sought to shield his comrade.

Acquire Poise, Avoid Pose

Bare Knees Are Assailed

Beatrice Roberts, America's Best-Dressed Girl, Goes on Record Against Rolled Hose and Fancy Garters.

BY BEATRICE ROBERTS,
New York Girl, Chosen in 1924 and 1925 as the Best Dressed in America.

NEW YORK, Saturday, Dec. 5.—Do you wear your clothes to their greatest advantage? Many women don't. Not a few of these are women who spend a great deal of money on their wardrobes.

The Paris importation looks poorly made and ordinary on the woman who doesn't know how to wear it. And, continually, the dress of undistinguished manufacture can "look like a million dollars" when worn with grace and ease.

"The ability to wear clothes well is almost a fine art. But it is an art within the reach of any woman with intelligence and a desire to learn. Let me pass on to you the instruction I received from time to time from my mother.

I remember when mother used to make me a new frock, as I supposed proudly out to display it to all the world, she used to admonish me to act as though I had worn the dress at least a dozen times. She used to explain that that would give the desirable impression that every frock I possessed was just as fresh and clean and unworn as my new one.

That I think is the first axiom for the woman who wishes to wear her clothes well. The well-dressed woman always gives the impression that she is never anything but well dressed. She doesn't pose, and she doesn't pause to look in every mirror that falls within her line of vision. She acts as if every costume she wears is a part of her. And as I pointed out in my first article, every costume ought to be part of her, imbued with her personality, distinguished by her own particular "quicks" and idiosyncrasies.

Wishes for Poise.
The ability to wear clothes with ease is due in no small measure to the development of a graceful carriage. But that carriage should not be one of self-conscious posture and pose. It should be one of natural poise, founded upon "unself-consciousness." It is one thing to be unceremoniously aware of one's clothes and one's movements. It is quite another thing to be certainly aware of all that one is and does. One makes for grace. The other for poise.

This is the second article by Miss Beatrice Roberts of New York on the ever-absorbing problem of clothes distinction and how to attain it. Miss Roberts is a two-time winner of the gold cup as the best-dressed girl in America at the annual national competition at Atlantic City. In her first article Miss Roberts told how she chooses her clothes; in this article she tells how she wears her clothes; in the third article, next Sunday, Miss Roberts will discuss clothes and bodily care.

It is the latter that I urge, as it was urged upon me. I was always told to believe that I was appropriately and well dressed. I was always urged to feel that my movements were natural and free. These things, mother told me, however, must just be felt within myself. She used to tell me that it would never do to flout them to the world with a supercilious eyebrow or a condescending smile. She explained that if I knew these things to be so, they were so automatically, and just as automatically, the world became aware of them.

Hold the Head High.

About carriage let me say this: The shoulders should be thrown back naturally and without exaggeration. The abdomen should be held in by muscular control. Nowhere in the posture should there be a hint of the one-time popular "debutante slouch." More important than all these—the head should be held high. For one thing, a well-poised head adds several inches to the height. For another, it improves the profile and prevents the early development of neck lines, and it wards off the double chin bugaboo.

For anyone who is not naturally graceful, let me recommend the study of dancing. There is very good instruction to be had for little money. Two or three lessons a week over a period of two or three months, in-

12/10/25 LUNCH LADY, N. QUI Answer: Well, some Chidmen have lot of places.

Beatrice Roberts

months, will do much to eliminate awkward posture and clumsy movements. You need not be frugal with an ambition to acquire skill as a ballet dancer to go to dancing school. What your body will achieve in grace, resiliency and elasticity will amply repay you for your attendance. Incidentally, dancing will also make you keep off unwanted fat. It will also develop the body to a high pitch of health and perfection.

The importance of grace in everyday movements and behavior cannot be exaggerated. Have you ever watched a series of would-be diva characters try on a model display it on you observed a prospective buyer? It looks charming, doesn't it—on the model? Perhaps one of the patrons tries it on again and is disappointed. And the model? Acquire the grace of the model. It can be done by dancing.

Detailed Problems.
Let us more detailed problems of wearing clothes. The rolled stocking, for instance. The rolled stocking is absolutely repugnant to me. I find it so unesthetic, so lacking in charm. Rolled hose never give that delightful skin-tight effect. They wrinkle. The seams twist off in every direction. And the kneest "that part of the feminine anatomy is infinitely more attractive when swathed in silk—particularly if the lower leg is thus covered. Moreover, the roll, appearing just below the knee, distorts the natural form of the leg and makes it appear to great disadvantage. For that reason I also disapprove of the fancy garter, that has suddenly become the fad. In these days of hosiery and bustle and the short, tight skirt, one's good taste is too frequently assailed by an unsightly array of rolled hose, garters and bare knees.

As a last admonition let me urge you to suit your costume to the occasion. It is the worst possible taste to wear a sleepless dress for morning wear. It is no less bad form to top an afternoon costume with a sports hat.

In my next article I shall describe various aids to beauty. They are no less important to the well-groomed woman, than a knowledge of how to choose and wear her clothes.

(Copyright, 1925.)

Next Sunday Miss Roberts will discuss clothes and bodily care. Her articles, under Sunday's, exclusively in The Seattle Times.

WINLOCK, Saturday, Dec. 5.—At this week's meeting of the City Council it was proposed to remunerate Mayor E. M. Hancock for legal services rendered the town during the past two years, but the mayor refused to accept anything for his work. The city budget for several years has set aside $25 per month for attorneys' fees, but since Mr. Hancock has been mayor he has acted as attorney, thus saving the town $600.

Cosmetics Should Be Used Best-Dressed Girl Says So

Beatrice Roberts, in Third Article of Her Series, Advises Minimizing Blemishes and Accentuating Good Points.

By BEATRICE ROBERTS,

New York Girl, Chosen in 1924 and 1925 as the Best Dressed in America.

NEW YORK, Saturday, Dec. 13.—
I am, a heretic. I believe in the use of cosmetics. They are an indispensable aid to a woman's beauty, provided they are used with a sense of proportion and color.

I know that it is unorthodox to think cosmetics anything but a vice.
In that case I am a renegade. Let me tell you why.

Very few faces are perfect. But nearly every face has some good point, some small distinction. Cosmetics, if properly used, can minimize
the blemishes and accentuate the good points.

There is nothing wrong about a
woman's desire to appear her best.
In fact it is most emphatically right.
Cosmetics can help her achieve that goal. Their use, therefore, is quite legitimate. But as in the choice of one's clothes, the choice of one's cosmetics should be made with great discrimination. While I hold a brief for the carefully and artistically "made-
up" woman, an abundant and too fla-
grant use of cosmetics is inexcusable.

Here are a few pointers on their
use:

If you haven't a nicely shaped
mouth, use very little lipstick.
Don't use powder with such profusion that your face is always reminiscent of a flour barrel. Powder
should only be used to remove "the shine" of an oily skin. The poorly fashioned nose looks particularly unflattering when painted white. As a general rule powder should always be applied to the skin darker than the one to be applied to.

"Fringe for the Eyes."
The eyes, whether beautiful or not,
can always be enhanced by a discreet
use of blackening. It should not be applied in great globes. Nor should the lashes be "beaded." The small brush
should be so skillfully wielded that
the lashes in themselves are apparent only as a frame for the eyes.

If you have one of those much to be envied clear brows, devote yourself
to it. Make it even clearer and more to be envied. A lovely complexion
can make a plain woman beautiful.
On the care of the skin I wish to dwell at greater length. I want to cheat a rhinoceros to the cleansing
cream. I am never too tired or too
sleepy at night to cleanse my face
with a good cream. No matter how late into the night I somehow cannot rest without a clear skin. I use a face cream
which cleanses the pores, removes the excess of oil, and leaves the skin
soft and smooth.

Many people believe that the early
use of cream is ruinous to the complexion. I don't agree. As a child,
my mother always used to clean my face with a cream. She used to say that she never thought I was properly bathed until my skin had been cleansed in that fashion.

Cleanliness and soft-
ness are the constant ups of powder and the dust of the city streets make the use of a cream essential to the good health of the skin. The natural oils
are replenished with each application.
Moreover, water alone cannot remove
the dirt from the pores, and soap, in my opinion, should never be used on the face.

Of course just as important to a woman's appearance is her hair. It should be kept clean and smooth.
A good shampoo is essential. The hair should be washed with a good shampoo, and then dried with a towel. The hair should be combed
smooth and then set with a good hair cream. The hair should be kept clean and smooth.

The care of the hair is a subject
upon which much has been written.
This much can be said, that the well-
dressed woman always looks as
though she has just come away from
the hairdresser's. Graceful, pale hands
with cared-for nails, not worn too
long, are one of the most charming
assets a woman can possess.

"Well-dressed?" There are all sorts
of subtleties and nuances suggested
by that term. It is not at all the
simple process that it may seem to
be. It requires thought, good
judgment and good taste to carry
that title. But who will deny that it is well worth earning?

(Copyright, 1925.)

Miss Beatrice Roberts of New York, two-time winner of the annual
national competition at Atlantic City,
for the title of the best-dressed girl
in America, has been writing for the Seattle Times a series of articles
on the ever-absorbing problem of
clothes distinction and how to attain
it. In her first article she told how she chooses her clothes; in her second article, Miss Roberts told how
she wears her clothes; and in this,
the third and last article of the series, she discusses clothes and bodily
care.

Charming complexion, is a sensible diet and sleep. All sleep is "beauty
sleep," provided you get enough of it.
Lack of sleep causes sallowness
and shadows and grooves under the eyes. But you know that as well as I.

As for diet, a good complexion demands simplicity of food. The fewer things you eat the better. It is always a good rule to cut down on the amount of meat you consume and
double the quantity of fresh veg-
tables and fruits.

So much for the face. The care of the body and the hands and the hair
are no less important to the woman
who wishes always to appear at her best.

Personal cleanliness is the very first axiom of feminine beauty. Bathe frequently. A cold bath in the morning and a hot one at night is a good arrangement. And then bathe as many times during the day, as you are seized with the urge.

Some people think that too much water dries and roughens the skin. It is not so. The oftener you bathe, the more your skin comes to acquire
smoothness and softness of satin.

Skin greivances disappear.
I remember one day, when I was about 4 years old, my mother and my grandmother quarreled about my being too fat for bathing. Grandmother
said that it would make my skin
hard and dry. It registered in being bathed three and four times a day,
to arbitrate. And his decision is to this day a maxim of my life. I remember, he said:

"Let her bathe as often as she pleases. The gleamer the skin, the freer it is of impediments. A clean
skin breathes easier, and acquires
both health and beauty."

Almost, he seems may be said of the hair. Of course a shampoo every day is rather too often. But so is one
a month just too few. I, for one,
shampoo my hair every week.

The care of the hands is a subject
upon which much has been written.
This much can be said, that the well-
dressed woman always looks as
though she has just come away from
the hairdresser's. Graceful, pale hands
with cared-for nails, not worn too
long, are one of the most charming
assets a woman can possess.

"Well-dressed?" There are all sorts
of subtleties and nuances suggested
by that term. It is not at all the
simple process that it may seem to
be. It requires thought, good
judgment and good taste to carry
that title. But who will deny that it
is well worth earning?

By CHARLES M. BAYER.
Public Director, 1925 and 1926, Atlantic City National Beauty Pageant.

In the past six years five American girls, from among
tens of thousands of contestants, have been crowned
as the nation's beauty queen, "Miss America."

What becomes of the beauty victors—and the vanquished?
Two hundred and forty-one girls, each a Venus who
has proved her chance superior to scores, to hundreds,
or even thousands of other girls in her home town,
have come out of Miss Street in a jolting onset of that crowned title bestowed each September in Atlantic City
by a jury of fifteen eminent artists. Five have won.
Two hundred and thirty-six have lost. Only one may
win. All others, each year, must go home in defeat.

What is the title worth to the girl who wears the diadem? What becomes of the scores of others who
return to their home towns in dejected disappointment?
Does beauty most often bring fame and happiness, or misfortune?
During two years of intimate contact with the Atlantic City beauty show, the writer has seen a firsthand witness to the ambitious hopes and woe-filled disillusionments of Vanity Fair. No one observed the wiles and ways of America's fairest. Daughters,
eager to exploit their pul-
chritude, have watched their
after-careers as they
their exaltation in that
brief period in which they
step into the spotlight and
then out again.

He has found that for some girls the
great experience that can come to them
only once—for no beauty may come to the Pageant another time—In the matter of success. And to others it is the avenue of disem-powerment that leads only back to Main Street
and perhaps the drab little job. The exaltation of each girl's enthusiastic supporters at home has whetted an appetite for possession of the crown and her vacation
is bitter when she finds the necessity of returning home with the label so pretty girl can covet—that she
is inferior to beauty to another.

Rack in 1921 when Atlantic City ventured, as a means of attracting nation-wide attention to its own district as an all-year resort, to create a beauty contest
institution for the selection of "Miss America," eight cities sent their fairest. The title went to little Margaret Gorman, a 16-year-old high school student of Washington, D. C. The footlights beckoned to Margaret, but as did her home. She chose the latter and completed her schooling. She might have made thousands on the stage or acquired millions in matrimony.
Instead, she became a secretary for the National Geographic Society. And when she married it was to a childhood sweetheart, Victor Cahill, now advanced into manhood and wealth as a real estate dealer. They married
a year ago, and recently have been honeymooning
in Europe.

Thirteen girls came to the second annual
contest in 1922, and the prettiest of them
all was declared to be Mary Katherine Campbell, high school student of Columbus, Ohio.

Katherine, too, spurned the stage,
but when she re-
turned and won
again in 1923, this
time in a field of
forty, she chose
to stay. It couldn't
do without her.
Vanderbilt manager could afford a
greater lure to a
two-time victor.
This time Miss
Campbell yielded,
but her tour was
short-lived. She decided she was more
at home in the classroom than before
her footlights, and returned from the stage.

She competed in the
pageant again in 1924, for
it was not until last year
that the rule was established forbid-
ding contestants to appear
more than once. This time, however,

the title went to Ruth Malcolmson, of Philadelphia, and Miss Campbell returned to her books. Today she is completing a course at Ohio
State College for Women.
Proposed to by twice-crowned winner have been profuse. But husband,
says Mary Katherine, are abundant and
college degrees are rare.

Ruth Malcolmson was the first Miss America to cash in on the title in substantial style. The pageant,
by the time of her selection, had attained to the dignity of a national institution, had gained
more universal publicity, and the advertising
value of the winner's name had increased. Miss Malcolmson had no time in taking advantage of vaudeville offers, but she discovered, like Miss Campbell, that her theatrical talents had limitations. Most of the time has been through

they had failed to give her a guaranteed percentage of the receipts.
It was not until Fay Lauphler, of Oakland, California, won the beauty crown in 1926 that the character of the pageant acquired big value. Taking her vacation from a vast estate office in which she was employed as a stenographer, Miss Lauphler bore the California ribbon to Atlantic City and quickly found that her chief of dictation and transcription were over. Main support of her widowed mother and four sisters and brothers, this "girl of the Golden West" found monetary reasons for real enthusiasm over the beauty pageant. For thirteen weeks she derived a salary of $1,500

After, she made a vaudeville tour of several months at a similar figure. Frequent appearances at banquets and in demonstration of a typewriter, with an average fee of $150,
jumped her bank account. Tralmonick, too, brought funds. And when she came back to Atlantic City last Fall, Miss Lauphler announced the year had given her $50,000. Today she is operating the Miss America Beauty Salon in Oakland, and seems personally on the road to prosperity.

With the 1925 pageant a rule was inaugurated barring any previous competitor from further efforts to win the crown. This competing brought forward, in a field of 56, a Mona Lisa type, Norma D. Smallwood, of Tulsa, Oklahoma. Her victory smile brought her a deluge of stage offers. Her first inclination was to resume her studies in Oklahoma State College for Women, but Fay Lauphler and other winners who were present at the pageant advised her: "You've got only one year to get it in. Get it while the getting is good."
Hence the college has lost a student for the year and the vaudeville stage has obtained a recruit. The other two Miss Smallwood told the neighbors in Tulsa that her stage appearances and tralmonick would yield a total of $100,000 for the year.

Thus, of the five girls who have won the crown,
two have married, one has married, and all have derived benefits one way or another. What of the others, those

scores and scores
who failed to win?

Many of them have found success on the stage or screen, a few have won wealthy husbands, misfortune has come to some, and the majority are right back where they started.

Charlotte Isabel Nash—Miss St. Louis, 1923—won the heart as well as the ballot of one judge, Fred G. Nixon-Nirdlinger, the multi-millionaire theatrical potentate. For many months, with his fortune and his influence behind her, she underwent a course of training to fit her for stardom on the stage. When her "finishing" was completed, Nirdlinger asked her to become his wife. They have since been divorced, after three separations and reconciliations.

It has been said of Dorothy Hughes, Miss New York, 1923, that she has been awarded more beauty prizes than any other girl in America. Joseph Cummings Chase, the artist; David W. Griffith, movie impresario, and Philip Payne, managing editor of the New York Daily Mirror, all agreed she was America's loveliest girl. So well convinced was Mr. Payne that he asked her to become Mrs. Payne, and they were married last December.

Margaret Louise Simpson, who was Miss Chicago in 1923, today is the wife of Joseph Ponderik, twice All-America football star, who owns private hunting reserves in Minnesota among other possessions which indicate his wealth. Annette Jackson, who as Miss Philadelphia, 1925, was barred from possible victory by the fact that she had accepted a stage contract and was therefore a "professional," found balm in Elkton, Maryland, to which popular marrying resort she eloped with Ormond W. Downes, Jr., nephew of a banker. Miss Boston, 1923, who was Margaret Black, married a Detroit automobile man, Milton Warren Truss, whose wedding gifts were a $9,000 love-knot, a three-month trip to Florida and a tour of Europe. Mary Griggs, who represented Newburgh, N. Y., near West Point, a few years ago, went back to marry her youthful sweetheart, Lieut. Ernest V. Holmes, graduate of the military academy.

Marjorie Smith, Toronto's representative in 1922, also returned home to marry her old "steady," Clifford Splan, an automobile mechanic, after she had jilted a millionaire. Not long ago she sued for divorce, however, alleging non-support, while Splan entered a counter-claim that the pageant had turned her head. Dorothy E. Gross, who was Miss Norristown, 1924, and Myrtle Henderson, who upheld the claims of Tampa, Fla., in 1924, married business men, while Estelle Bradley, of Atlanta (1924), became the bride of a movie director.

Helen Gould Sweeney, Miss Washington, 1924, has spent several months denying she was engaged to "Goose" Gosling, of the Washington baseball team.

Not a few of the unsuccessful aspirants to the beauty award have found success on stage and screen despite their failure in the pageant. Georgia Hale, who competed as Miss Chicago, 1924, was Charlie Chaplin's leading lady in "The Gold Rush." Adrienne Dore, runner-up for the title as Miss Los Angeles, 1925, is filling a five-year contract with Universal Pictures. Marjorie Joesting, who was runner-up last year as Miss Washington, wept at her defeat, but she won a part in the successful musical show, "Honeymoon Lane," in New York.

Another who shed tears of disappointment was Beatrice Roberts, Miss New York in 1924 and Miss Greater New York in 1925, twice voted the best-dressed girl in America in evening gowns, who stood third in the 1925 balloting. She went on the stage in Ziegfeld's "Palm Beach Nights." Edith Higgins, Miss Bronx, 1925, joined a night club revue in New York. Nina Wolfe, Miss Boston, 1925, became a theatre director in that city.

Others who are now or have been on the stage include Sue Starkey, of Tulsa; Flo Williams, of Scranton; Lee Bartlett, Dorothy Knapp and Eleanor A. Hoffman, of Atlantic City; Mildred Adams, of Baltimore, and Zayda Lord, of Houston. Probably the most successful of all American beauty contest winners is Lois Wilson, the screen star, who won her first chance in the films through a competition in Birmingham, judges that she filed suit against the beauty committee. She suffered the humiliation, too, of a reprimand for appearing on the beach in Atlantic City in exactly the same costume she had worn in the Boardwalk parade.

Atlanta a few years ago decided the world had no pulchritude superior to that of Sarah Gillespie, who was sent to a contest in Madison Square Garden. Shortly after she became the wife of Claude Byfield, of Atlanta, and they became chummy with the Walter Candler, of the multi-millionaire "soft" drink family. Byfield thought Candler too attentive to Mrs. Byfield and brought suit, specifying incidents on a trans-Atlantic passage. "Miss Atlanta" was absolved of blame by a jury which awarded Byfield $25,000, but the aftermath of her beauty contest victory was eventual divorce and charges of blackmail made by Walter Candler.

"I adore pets! Horses, dogs and kittens. But I have no use for a pet corn."

So writes Beatrice Roberts... the charming Miss Manhattan.

"In these days a corn seems like a silly grievance... with a drug store on almost every corner and Blue-jay as easy to get as postage stamps."

Always the safest and gentlest way to end a corn, Blue-jay for 1928 offers new refinements. A creamy-white pad instead of a blue one. A more flexible disc for the awkwardly placed corn. And a new and improved package!

One plaster usually ends the corn. But even the rugged "old-timer" seldom needs more than two... In the new package at all drug stores. For calluses and bunions use Blue-jay Bunion and Callus Plasters.

And yet another film actor, Conrad Nagel, one-time silent star and hero of the early talkies, takes to directing. His first, "Love Takes Flight," current Capitol fare, is an airy little piece full of implausibilities about an intrepid air hostess who steps in and up, where seasoned aces would fear to tread air. The lady's refusal to give up the high ozone for the hot air of a Hollywood contract is a little too good to be true. Also an obvious tie-up with the production and a well-known airline company almost puts this one on the plane of a commercial cinema. Beatrice Roberts is the lady, comely and possessed of nice camera angles but she doesn't look quite at home behind the stick. Bruce Cabot is the best of the cast, though his parachute jump into the Pacific to give the gal all the credit strains the imagination somewhat. Astrid Allwyn as the siren comes to bat nicely but the piece is a little loosely directed. Try again, Mr. Nagel.—G.A.

STRAND

"Park Avenue Logger," George O'Brien's latest outdoor picture, opened yesterday at the Strand theatre to provide the audience with an hour of thrilling action set against a background of picturesque ruggedness.

Supported by such able players as Beatrice Roberts, Bert Hanton, Gertrude Short, Willard Robertson and Ward Bond, George O'Brien is cast in the role of a social lion who is employed in the New York office of his father, a wealthy lumber magnate. As dissatisfied with his colorless position as the father is with his apparently soft-mannered son, O'Brien manages to be sent to one of the company's mammoth lumber camps, there to learn the logging business from the bottom up.

With the chance to lead the vigorous life of a lumberjack, O'Brien launches into his new career with such energy that he soon becomes a leader among the two-fisted rough-necks and eventually succeeds in routing several men whose dishonest acts have practically bankrupt two logging camps, one of which is owned by a young girl.

Beatrice Roberts contributes a noteworthy performance as the young lady operating a rival lumber business, which is saved by O'Brien's opportune intervention.

FIGURES IN DIVORCE DAMAGE SUIT. The marital troubles of Al Rogell, film director, and his blond wife, Ena Gregory Rogell (above right) are giving folks in Hollywood something to talk about. Rogell has sued William Van Rensselaer Smith, wealthy attorney (above left) for $150,000 heart balm and has named him correspondent in a divorce suit. Last Friday seven men raided Smith's home and are alleged to have found Smith in his pajamas and Mrs. Rogell hiding in a clothes closet. Smith alleges he was framed and has sued Rogell and his attorneys for $500,000, charging they conspired to injure his reputation.

Filing of a $150,000 alienation of affection suit against William V. R. Smith, wealthy Beverly Hills resident, by Albert Rogell, motion picture director, has set the Hollywood film colony to chattering. Rogell, recently in a divorce complaint, accused his wife, Ena Gregory Rogell, of being overfriendly with other men. Now he has filed supplementary action naming Smith as the man who not only broke up his home but allegedly induced Mrs. Rogell to visit at the Smith home in a midnight rendezvous.

"COCKTAIL HOUR" DIVORCE SCANDAL STIRS HOLLYWOOD

Los Angeles.—Hollywood's amazing "Cocktail Hour" divorce drama is furnishing the film capital with sensations, action, thrills and developments outrivalling the most sophisticated screen story ever filmed under blaring klieg lights.

Principals in this startling marital melodrama are Al Rogell, nationally famous film director; his pretty blond wife, Edna Gregory, former actress, also renowned on the silver screen as Marian Douglas, and William Van Rensselaer Smith, wealthy young Beverly Hills attorney.

Fast and Furious.

So fast and furious have developments followed each other in this astounding "triangle" that even those directors, studio executives, actors and actresses who have produced many "heart throb" talkies and it difficult to follow the Rogell-Smith-Rogell "script."

The developments include:

Rogell swears to a divorce complaint against his pretty wife, charging she attends too many cocktail parties and is over-friendly with other men. The scene for this "take" is the office of Rogell's attorney, Milton Cohen, Jr.

Midnight raid on Beverly Hills mansion of Smith three nights later, where raiders, including Rogell and his lawyer, find Smith clad in pajamas and dressing gown and Mrs. Rogell hiding in closet, dressed except for shoes and stockings.

Formal filing of divorce suit by Rogell the following morning.

Suit for $150,000, charging alienation of affections, filed against Smith by Rogell two days later.

Amendment to divorce complaint filed by Rogell next day, directly naming Smith as the "other man" with whom wife has been "over-friendly."

Sues for $500,000.

Damage suit for $500,000 filed against Rogell and his lawyers by Smith, as aftermath of midnight raid.

Cross-complaint for divorce—filed by Mrs. Rogell, who also asks $750 monthly alimony and $5,500 for counsel fees and costs.

Amendment to $500,000 damage suit filed by Smith, specifically charging Rogell and his lawyer with theft of personal property, including jewelry, of value of $3,000, as well as of destruction of door in forcing entry during midnight raid.

And other sensational developments are promised before the various legal battles are fought out in court.

Ena Gregory gave up her career in motion pictures for love. For nearly eight years the Rogells were found upon in the colony as

the happiest married couple in Hollywood.

DENIES KNOWING ANYTHING OF HER MATE'S MARRIAGE

Nancy Carroll Uncertain of Plans for Reno Di- vorce

(By The Associated Press)
Reno, Nev., Aug. 4.—Nancy Carroll, told of reports the husband she came here to divorce had married a girl in Mexico, said today she didn't know what she could do about it.

"I really don't know anything about it or what I can do about it," said the screen actress, who is establishing residence to divorce Bolton Mallory.

"As far as I know," said Miss Carroll, "I'm still married to Mr. Mallory, but I haven't seen him for a year and a half."

The actress said she never had heard of Carlota Lobato, named in dispatches as the 14-year-old bride of Mallory, and had no idea whether her husband had obtained a Mexican divorce.

The red-haired screen star, who arrived here July 24, said her attorney, Wayne Wilson, would have to determine what her future plans would be regarding a divorce.

Name Linked to Rich Lawyer's

(By The Associated Press)
New York, Aug. 4.—Nancy Carroll, stage and screen actress, waited two years before starting divorce proceedings against Bolton Mallory out of respect for the wishes of her Catholic parents, Thomas La Hiff, Jr., Miss Carroll's brother, said today.

La Hiff also gave some foundation to rumors romantically linking Miss

Carroll and William van Rensselaer Smith, wealthy California lawyer.

"I wouldn't be surprised if she did marry him," he said.

He added that Smith had accompanied Miss Carroll East on several recent trips.

Mallory, former editor of the magazine Life, was reported yesterday to have obtained a Mexican divorce from Miss Carroll while she was in Reno preparing to file an action of her own and to have married 14-year-old Carlota Lobato.

Tom La Hiff, 64 years old, Miss Carroll's father, expressed himself deeply pleased that it was Mallory, and not his daughter, who had instituted the proceedings.

Miss Carroll had been previously married and divorced. Her first husband was Jack Kirkland, author of the play "Tobacco Road," which has been running on Broadway for nearly two years. Mallory's marriage to Miss Lobato was his fourth.

The family expects Miss Carroll to return here this week from Reno with her sister, Mrs. Franklin Robertson, whom she asked to stay with her during her divorce proceedings.

Mrs. Robertson was singing and dancing with Nancy in a Knights of Columbus minstrel show in 1922 when the latter was given her first chance on Broadway.

AAA OF MOTORISTS OPPOSE USE OF NAME

(By The Associated Press)
Washington, Aug. 4.—The alphabetical New Deal ran into a brand new snafu today when one of its abbreviated institutions—the AAA—drew a protest from the American Automobile Association.

Thomas P. Henry, president of the motorists' AAA, wrote a letter to Chairman Smith, Democratic South Carolina, of the Senate Legislative committee urging that Congress grant "relief" for infringement of its copyrighted insignia.

He suggested that Secretary Wallace's AAA be changed to ARA—agricultural Readjustment administration.

Suit for Heart Balm.

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 6 (AP).—

Al Rogell, film director and former husband of Ena Gregory, film actress, failed to prosecute his 150 thousand dollar alienation of affections suit against William Van Rensselaer Smith, attorney, within the required two-year period and the case has been dismissed, superior court records showed today.

In 1934 Rogell charged a pending divorce complaint against Miss Gregory and named Smith as co-respondent. Smith in turn named Rogell in a 500 thousand dollar damage suit which later was dismissed.

Beatrice Roberts y Joe Creah han acaban de ser contratados por la Columbia para desempeñar importantes papeles en la película Columbia "Black Torrent" (El torrente negro—provisional) la cual se está rodando actualmente, bajo la dirección de Ernest Schoedsack. Jack Holt, el varonil astro de la Columbia, tiene a su cargo el rol central, acompañado de Mae Clarke, y apoyado por James Bush, Ray Walker, y Johnold Hubor.

of power in the city. One of them becomes a priest. Two join the police force. Marty after taking a "reformation" rap for his pals as a kid, becomes a night club operator and the girl of the gang sings in his floor show. Gradually all five become entangled in a web of terrific danger till the explosive denouement blows things wide open.

The leading feminine part in the picture is played by Beatrice Roberts, a beautiful newcomer to films. As the girl McLaglen loves and loses, she is splendid. Paul Kelly is another as the priest. William Garvan and John Gallaudet portray the two policemen in the old gang with an appealing directness. Frank Jenks, one of the favorite comics of this department, is very funny and so is the moon faced Dave Oliver. The whole supporting cast, including several child players carry their roles off expertly.

Sweet potatoes are roots; Irish potatoes are stems.

the AVALON PRESENTS 'DEVIL'S PARTY'

Victor McLaglen turns in one of the best jobs of acting in his long and notable screen career in "The Devil's Party" which began its stay at the Avalon theater today.

There are moments when his portrayal of Marty Malone the big stomy hearted Irishman who strays from the straight and narrow path and re-appears himself by a great sacrifice, approaches his screen picture of that other embattled Celt, Gypo Nolan in "The Informer." There are pathos, savage aggressiveness, reckless heroism and passages of rich humor as the brawny Victor, fights, loves and loses and sweeps on to his dramatic fate in a climax scene of tremendous power.

Though McLaglen's portrait of Marty is the highlight of the film it is not just a solo triumph. In "The Devil's Party," Universal has produced a picture of shattering dramatic impact, with one of the warmest most human stories ever to reach the screen in months. It tells of a gang of five kids from New York's Hell's Kitchen who grow up to positions

Albert Rogell Sued For
$125,000 by Bettie

Butler

HOLLYWOOD, July 15 (U.P.).—Bettie Butler, 24-year-old film player, filed suit today for $125,000 against Albert Rogell, prominent motion picture director, charging him with seduction under promise of marriage.

Miss Butler charged that Rogell, "after amusing and enjoying himself" in her society, broke the engagement and married Mrs. Irma Warner, former wife of Jack Warner, film executive.

Miss Butler claimed she became engaged to Rogell in July, 1937, that the director broke the engagement, and that last February he married Mrs. Warner. Rogell formerly was married to Ena Gregory, the "Butterfly" girl who now is Mrs. William Van Rensselaer Smith, wife of a wealthy Beverly Hills attorney.

She said she now was "sick in mind and body" and asked $50,000 on that score. She asked another $50,000 for Rogell's asserted breaking of their engagement and marriage to Mrs. Warner.

Great-to-Do About Hollywood as Style Center Just Ballyhoo; Actresses Have Little or No Idea of What to Wear, or How

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 4.—Much fuss has been made in recent months about Hollywood becoming the fashion center of the world. The women's and misses' department gals of some papers have come out here for a gander, and have written about the incredibly wonderful work of the studio designers. A newly organized fashion whoop-la-do is about to begin, and Hollywood will again be proclaimed the style capital. Maybe so, maybe so. But all this superlativity doesn't show on the local women, who in the main are ungodly badly dressed. Let Hollywood babes get off the sound stages and they will turn up in public in some of the damndest messes.

Take for example, the fashion luncheon at the Carthage Circle premiere of "Pantastasia." This should have been something, with celebs by the gross and 5000 onlookers in bleachers and introductions by loud-speaker.

Well, to the unheeded eye of this possibly ignorant reporter, there wasn't one smartly turned-out woman in 20. Some wore henry-tonic outfits that just looked cheap and not daring enough to be interesting. Many others interestingly wore the wrong colors, and there were a few who'd have made a technicolor camera strip its gears. It is interesting to note that practically all of the color-blind ones were blondes. I guess they're not used to being blondes.

And who am I to go shooting off my dirty mouth? Nobody. Ladies, I wouldn't know a guiset from a hippe. Just a man who finds it pleasant to look at handsome women.

Warrens, the book-buyers, have acquired Charles Morgan's "The Voyage." . . . For the first of the series of shorts based on the radio forum idea, Columbia has signed Dorothy Thompson, William Shirey, Whythe Williams and Linton Wells to gab about the war in a number called "What's the Shoutin' For?" And I bet Dor Fuchress gives the boys what-for.

Gerardine Fitzgerald will be heading New Yorkward come spring, looking for a stage play. . . . And Jimmy Cagney is aiming for Florida during the spring baseball training, after which he will take the usual sleets at Martha's Vineyard. . . . Shooting starts on "Sergeant York," with Gary Cooper as the sergeant and Jont Leslie as the child bride. . . . Gilbert Roland, Charles Whimager and Murray Alper have been added to the cast of Ronald Colman's slaver, "My Life With Caroline."

Adding what's been done on "The Devil

and Miss Jones," RKO would like to have Jean Arthur for another picture. . . . A silent preview of Harold Lloyd's "A Guy, a Girl and a Gob" reveals a good performance by Edmund O'Brien, so RKO has fitted the option and will give O'Brien a building as a bright young man.

Something new in the way of screen battles will be a lift between Bruce Cabot and Roland Young in "The Flame of New Orleans." They're fighting over Marlene Dietrich, as who wouldn't, and they duel according to rules that prevailed a century ago in Louisiana. Louisiana got the rules from Trinidad. Each guy has a knife. One or the other has a clean handkerchief. They sit at a table, hold the handkerchief between them in their teeth, and start cutting. The first one who opens his mouth to say "Ouch" and drops the handkerchief is the loser.

Pat O'Brien, who quit Warrens after the Rocky picture to free lance, has been signed by 20th-Fox for two pictures a year. No vehicle yet. . . . The same studio has word that Jean Chabin, the French heart throw, is in Lisbon, and has clipper booking for some time in February. . . . Beaulieu Roberts, Ziegfeld girl and once a "most-photographed" model, has come out of retirement and signed a long-term deal with Universal to play leads.

When Dick Powell and Joan Blondell finish shooting "Model Wife" they'll head for New York and Jack White's club, but they plan to stop over in Dick's home town, Little Rock, Ark. Joan has never been there. . . . George Abbott, due here before summer for another stint at RKO, may be the pilot on a Ginger Rogers picture. . . . Dave Hempstead, who produced "Titty People," will undermind a new Ben Hecht picture when Hecht gets around to writing it.

William Dieterle wants to buy "Johnny Belinda," the New York play, starring Helen Craig. Miss Craig plays a deaf mute, sparks only one line at the end of the play. Report from New York is that, since Joe Green saw "Johnny Belinda" a few weeks ago, the Hays office has reversed its stand and will allow the drama to be bought for pictures.

Some time ago Martha Scott won a horse, Red Kimber by name, in a raffle for $1. So she and her husband built a ranch to go with the horse. Determined to win some money back some way, Miss Scott has persuaded Sam Hirschoff that Red Kimber is just the nag he needs for "Texans." Sam will pay $25 a day for the dollar-and-a-panch animal during shooting of the picture.

the south and claim her. He sent the furniture back and eventually the lady's husband claimed her.

One admirer started corresponding nine years ago. The mother of a 12-year-old girl, she professed great unhappiness with her husband and great affection for Ripley. Over the years the letters arrived regularly. Then one day the mother stopped writing and the daughter took it up. The daughter is 21 now, and still writing.

Another lady fan finally cornered Ripley on one of his trips west. She had been waiting for years and now would see her idol in person.

"She looked me over long and hard," Ripley recounted. "The beam left and she gradually took on an expression of utter disbelief. 'Are you Mr. Ripley?' she queried. I nodded my head. A strangled 'Oh!' escaped her and she left forthwith." Outpourings of feminine sentiment do not thrill Ripley. A practical soul, he attributes them to the emotion foisted on persons in the public eye.

"Women are wonderful, simply wonderful!" he sighs, and then adds: "In their place." He does not go along with the modern theory of sex equality.

"The only time women are happy is when they are completely under the domination of men. All a Mohammedan must do to obtain a divorce is tell his wife to 'go home' three times. That's how much of a boss he is. But, believe it or not, he rarely does it. His wife is supremely happy."

The Ripley matrimonial menage, he points out, would not be ideal for a variety of reasons. (One, his favorite dish, dating from boyhood, is spinach and chili sauce; two, he rides in his car from his Mamaronock home to his New York apartment wearing only bathrobe and slippers; three, he moves furniture continually; and four, he insists on being surrounded with his own curies, a collection of nightmarish guess-whats that do not lend themselves to routine housekeeping.

He was married once, so long ago that "it seems unreal." He wed Beatrice Roberts, a "Follies" girl, in 1920.

"One day she said to me: 'Bob, I'm going downtown to get a divorce from you!'" he recounts. "That was the way she left me. But there were no hard feelings. We saw a lot of each other after the divorce. I was only making $50 a week then."

Ripley was born in Santa Rosa, Calif., in 1893. When he was 12 his father died and he was forced to support his mother and younger sister and brother.

Believe-It-Or-Not! Bob Ripley

By Jack Stone

SHOULD you imagine that the double strain of maintaining a state of single blessedness and assembling the unbelievables of "Believe It or Not"
for 28 years have made of Robert L.
Ripley a person of odd behaviors and emotional imbalances, you are considerably wrong. *

Mr. Ripley has survived the rigors of single blessedness and multiple oddities with such ease
that today, at the age of 53, he is an exceptionally happy man with an ebullient sense of humor, the rating of a multimillionaire and an outlook as
rational as your next door neighbor's.

It is somewhat of an incongruity to discover the round, twinkling-eyed Ripley ensconced in the elaborately Oriental trappings of his New York City
apartment. The atmosphere suggests the imminence
of Manchu conquerors and fire-dispensing dragons,
but usually there are only Ripley, dressed in thoroughly western sports casuals, and two of his chic
secretaries, chatting in modern jargon about a hundred and one uncommontplaces.

One of America's wealthiest unmarried men,
Ripley nevertheless finds nothing commendable
in the distinction.

"I'm not proud of the fact," he smiled ruefully.
"Man's natural destiny is marriage and children.
But who . . ." he waved a deprecating hand at the riot of Chinese splendor about him . . . "would
consent to do housework in these surroundings?
Or who would pick up at a moment's notice and
travel through the African jungles or the Sahara
wastes in search of believed-oddities?"

Nevertheless, the 3,000 letters a day that occupy
the attention of a dozen Ripley aides do not all recognize the wisdom of his words. In every mail,
there are marriage proposals.

There was the Syracuse woman, for instance,
who wrote him regularly and most affectionately
and finally dispatched a missive stating that if she did not get counter-instructions within 10 days she would ship all her furniture to his Manhattan,
N. Y. estate and follow posthaste herself.

Ripley, thinking it all a little silly, took no action. To his sorrow. At the end of the 10-day period the lady's furniture arrived. Ripley waited in fearful anticipation for the lady herself, but she did not come. Instead, a letter explained that she was waiting in a Buffalo hotel with her small daughter for Ripley. Loathsome, to ride out of the south and claim her. He sent the furniture

back and eventually the lady's husband claimed
her.

R. L. Ripley, Cartoonist, Dies, Aged 55

Death Is Caused
By Heart Attack

NEW YORK, May 27.—(UP)—Robert L. Ripley, 55, creator of "Believe It or Not," died at Park-nex Pavilion late today.

The famed cartoonist, who branched out into movies, radio, books and television in satisfying the public hunger for the unusual, was admitted to the hospital at 3 P. M. yesterday. He died at 5 P. M. today.

The hospital, part of Columbia-Presbyterian Medical Center, said Ripley suffered a heart attack and died a short time later. They said he was suffering from a heart ailment when he entered the hospital yesterday.

A man with insatiable curiosity, Ripley found that people the world over were just as interested as he in human pincushions, three-headed calves and men who could walk only backward. At the peak of his success, his cartoons were read by 60,000,000 people daily.

He had appeared last Tuesday on his regular television broadcast, one of a series he started last March after another of his many round-the-world trips.

Visited 200 Countries

He had visited more than 200 countries and the sun porch of his home at Manhattan, N. Y., was bedecked with the flags of each nation. In the room was a compass with inscriptions giving the exact mileage to the hundreds of cities he had visited.

Ripley always preferred that his subjects be called "oddities," not "freaks," and his statements were not always what they appeared to be. He once drew thousands of inelegant letters when he said Charles Lindbergh was the sixty-seventh man to fly the Atlantic mansion.

He was right. Two men in one airplane and 64 men in two dirigibles had flown the ocean before Lindy.

Occasionally he was wrong. He said once that Abraham Lincoln and General Robert E. Lee were first cousins once removed. A Southern newspaper neglected to print that they could not have been closer than sixteenth cousins.

Born on Christmas Day

Ripley was born in Santa Rosa, Calif., on Christmas Day, 1863, and his first name was actually LeRoy, but he disliked it and insisted that he be called Robert. His first job was polishing graves alone at a stone cutters and he excelled as an amateur baseball pitcher.

His first newspaper job was for the San Francisco Bulletin where he went to work as a sports cartoonist. He moved to the San Francisco Chronicle three years later and then came to New York where he went to work for the Globe.

He began to depict the unusual in sports, entitling the drawings "Believe It or Not," and there was such an enthusiastic response that the editors assigned him to general coverage of the unusual.

He married Beatrice Roberts, a Massachusetts beauty contest winner and former "Poller" girl, in 1919. They were divorced seven years later.

He never remarried although he was considered a catch when he made millions of dollars with his cartoons, movies and lectures for which he received $1,000 an appearance.

He opened an "odditorium" at the New York World Fair in 1930 and it attracted thousands.
